Whistle on Roof Used To Fight Starlings

The screeching whistle sound ing from the roof of the Munsey building, is not a call to the police for help, as many in the curious crowds that form nightly suspect, but just another indication that private interests have taken up the fight against the thousands of starlings which try to get a good night's sleep perched on the window sills of

MASTERY of POWER

THE essence of fine engineering is consistent evenness and ease at any speed and all speeds. You will find this one of the cardinal characteristics of the Chrysler Imperial "80". Frequently even a fine car plunges from a lower to a higher speed. In the Imperial "80" the transition is so swift and so soft that one speed merely merges into another. And you, sitting in the front seat or in the rear, simply sit as you sat before, whether the mileage registers forty or twice that figure. Chrysler In.perial "80" does not stand for power and speed but for a mastery of power and speed which gives to motoring a thrill it has not had before.

FORMER AID TO U.S. ATTORNEY TO RUN FOR SENATE AS WET

Advocates Beer and Light Wine; Says Thinking People Against Prohibition.

The collapse of prohibition enforcement is chiefly due. Mr. Kelly says. to the fact that prohibition is not supported by the American people and is beoming more and more distasteful to an increasing majority.

Mr. Kelly will enter the Republican primaries to be held September 7. His headquarters will be opened this week at the Republican House, Milwaukee. He has become a candidate at the urgent request of the Anti-Tax League of America. The central idea of the league's program is to taxlight wines and thereby raise sufficient revenue to abolish all Federal and State income taxes.

Mr. Kelly, who is a native of Wisconsin, was in Washington yesterday, and confirmed the report that he was a candidate, making the following statement to The Post:

"When I served as prohibition enforcement officer and prosecutor for the District, I bent all my energies toward strict enforcement of the law. Now that I have returned to private practice, I feel free to say that I regard the prohibition law as a grave mistake. Unfortunate appointments have en made to the tariff commission by the Harding and Coolidge administrations, Prof. F. W. Taussig, the commission's first chairman, said yesterday at the opening of the Senate's investigation into administration of the tariff law.

He criticized President Coolidge for withholding from the public the report of the commission's sugar investigation, and advocated a policy of permitting the commission report direct to Congress.

The Senate debated the nomina tion for more than two hours with-out getting to a vote. After the session ended Senator Reed, Repub-lican, Pennsylvania, announced that in view of the White House pronouncement, he would support Woodlock, who is holding office under a recess appointment given him last year after the Senate had failed to act on his nomination.

STORE CHAT BY LANSBURGH & BRO.

Fair Prices Always—

"You can get it at Lansburgh & Bros.— and very often for less." In a phrase, this largely explains the success of this store. And here are the reasons:

First-The larger an institution, the greater is its buying power in the markets of the world. And now that we are affiliated with the American Retailers' Association, we actually have a buying power of $128,000,-000! No single store, not even the great "Macy's," of New York, can boast of such a tremendous purchasing strength.

Second-Our representatives always seek quality first, and can better obtain it because they can buy in tremendous quantity, and there are no lots too large.

Third-Stocks throughout the store are quickly sold, then replaced and sold again. Rapid turn-over means "less money on the shelf"-and consequently a saving in operating costs.

Fourth-Efficiency in organization and elimination of waste contribute no less to the general economies, and mean, therefore, still greater savings.

> It is well worth remembering that "You can get it at Lansburgh & Bros.—and very often for less."

WATCHING THE SITUATION.

The furore raised in Europe over Ambassador Houghton's exposure of conditions there is satisfying evidence of the accuracy of his He is entitled to the thanks of opinions. Americans for making the truth known. If it is the truth that enrages the apologists of European politics, so much the worse for them. If they were wise they would abandon the attempt to hoodwink the United States by talking disarmament while planning to make disarmament impossible.

President Coolidge has not permitted the situation to develop in such fashion as to give any foreign country an excuse for asserting that the United States has stood in the way of disarmament. He has set aside his own ideas of the proper procedure and has cheerfully accepted Europe's invitation to participate in a preparatory conference. This preparatory conference will be fortunate if it does not prove to be a worse flasco than the recent league meeting at Geneva. But the United States will not be responsible for the failure. It is ready at all times to do its share in behalf of world disarmament, both on land and sea.

As for the world court, the President is said to be little impressed by the suggestion that the United States should send an envoy to Geneva to explain and interpret the Senate's reservations to the protocol. When the invitation of the league council is received he will decide the questions. Many Americans are asking how the league council happens to have acquired jurisdiction over this matter, if the court has nothing to do with the league. When did the nations authorize the council to extend an invitation in their name?

The covenant of the league of nations and the world court statute may have to be amended, if the nations should decide to acquiesce in the Senate reservations. But that work does not require the presence of an American negotiator. On the other hand, if the nations should hold that the Senate reservations should be modified to suit the covenant and the court statute, the President could not enter into negotiations to that end without placing himself in the attitude of opposition to the Senate. He is understood to be satisfied with the reservations as they stand. The most important one, relating to advisory opinions, was adopted at his suggestion.

The safe and logical course is what the President may be expected to take. The United States having set forth the terms upon which it is willing to sign the world court protocol. it is up to the other contracting parties to accept these terms or reject them. It would be unwise to send a plenipotentiary to Geneva to explain and interpret anything. His explanations and interpretations, if in accordance with the reservations, would be superfluous; and if conflict with them, they would be mischievous and would precipitate a quarrel between the President and the Senate on the one hand and between the United States and other nations on the other.

Recent developments strongly emphasize the necessity of safeguarding every sten taken by the United States in dealing with the European politicians who are working behind the mask of the league of nations. Fortunately the administration is well informed by capable advisers and is proving its ability to cope with the new situation that has arisen

THE GRAND NATIONAL.

Turfmen on this side of the Atlantic are looking forward with keen interest to the running of the Liverpool Grand National steeplechase at Alntree next Friday. The wish being father to the thought, some of the crosscountry enthusiasts think that an Americanowned jumper may carry off the prize; yet there is not much ground for the hope, inasmuch as only two of the prospective starters carrying the colors of an American owner appear to have much chance. These two. Mount Etna and Bright Boy, are owned by Laddie Sanford. The former is the one to which the Americans are pinning their hope because he has already won at Hurst Park this year. Bright Boy has been a winner over the Aintree course, but not over such horse as he will have to meet on Friday.

Mr. Sanford was the last American owner to win the famous jumping classic of the British turf, his entry, Sergeant Murphy, having captured the race in 1923. But Sergeant Murphy was perhaps a better animal than either Mount Etna or Bright Boy. However, the Liverpool is never won until the finish has been passed, and luck plays so great a part in the result that any horse may be said to have a chance. This year it happens that a woman is the owner of the favorite, Sprig, and in the future wagering on the race this horse in listed as the most likely of a quartet that will go to the post heavily backed, the others being Old Tay Bridge, Mount Etna and Koko. Sprig is owned by Mrs. Partridge, and if her entry should win she will have gained a coveted prize that rarely comes to one of her sex. The | uniform motor vehicle registration and certi-

This horse finished second in last year's race, and his fair owner is confident that he will move up a notch this year. He is a safe jumper, but lacks the speed of some of the other entries. The women appear to hold a much stronger hand this year than ever before.

The Liverpool is run over the most difficult course in the world. Its distance is about 4 1/2 miles, and only the stoutest horses can live the Greater interest is taken in the event this year because the Prince of Wales, who is a cross-country enthusiast, will be among the

A CLOSE CORPORATION.

Although Sir Austen Chamberlain told the house of commons yesterday that he had not made any engagement with Premier Briand regarding the Polish claim to a seat in the council of the league of nations, and had not instigated or encouraged M. Briand to press Poland's claim, the fact remains that the British foreign minister shares the blame attached to those who signed the Locarno pacts and then thwarted Germany's admission into the council. If Mr. Chamberlain was not compromised by a secret agreement, the reason for his astonishing course of action at Geneva must remain a mystery.

What power or powers stood behind Brazil in checkmating the plan for admitting Germany? What was it that paralyzed Messrs Briand and Chamberlain? Some day the secret may be revealed. Until that time, criticism of Brazil is out of place. Brazil had as permanent seat. When the Locarnists attempted to brush aside her claims she retaliated by giving notice that she would exercise her power of veto.

Many threats have been made to the effect that the assembly would punish Brazil by refuging to reelect her to the council. That reprisal would materially accelerate the disintegration of the league itself. Yet M. Briand himself intimated that the commission appointed to recast the structure of the council would eliminate the unanimous voting provision. Apparently it is the intention of the great powers to throw off all pretense that the league of nations is a world organization seeking peace by the voluntary cooperation of all nations. It is to be a close corporation of the

THE CABLE ACT.

The Cable act was designed for the purpose of permitting a married woman to retain all the rights which she enjoyed as a spinster with particular reference to those of a political character. But it has worked backward, so to speak. Instead of increasing the political rights of a married woman, born an American citizen, who had married an allen before the enactment of the Cable bill, the lady found herself without a country when her alien husband subsequently became a naturalized American. Several hundred such instances are recorded in the naturalization bureau of the Department of Labor, as well as in the passport division of the Department of State.

To correct the evils of this hasty legislation amendments have been introduced making the citizenship of every woman in America independent of that of her husband, and completely equalizing the citizenship rights of men and women. These amendments are under consideration by the immigration committees of the House and Senate, having been offered by Representative Bacon, of New York, and Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin.

All things come to him who waits, including a summons for parking too long

A FISCAL INQUIRY.

It is to be hoped that Congress will not adtourn without acting upon the resolutions introduced in the House by Mr. Zihlman and in the Senate by Mr. King, providing for a thorough inquiry into the fiscal relationship between the Federal government and the District. The resolutions contemplate investiga tions that are widely different in scope, but they indicate the interest that apparently is being taken by the members of both bodies in the welfare of the Federal city. Mr. Zihlman's resolution would authorize an inquiry by a committee of Congress to sit after adjournment with the idea of determining the percentage of appropriations which should be borne by the Federal government and that to be imposed upon the taxpayers of Washington. The central question involved is whether or not Congress should adopt as permanent law the policy of contributing a lump sum to the cost of maintaining the District. Many citizens of the District insist that there should be a return to the former plan of distributing the ost of government on a percentage ratio basis.

Senator King proposes an investigation by a joint committee of the Senate and House, broad in its scope, "that would be friendly and constructive and not with a view to tearing down.

Perhaps Mr. Zihlman and Senator King may get together and agree upon a plan of inquiry that will be satisfactory to all concerned. No one will deny the need of such an investigation and now that the proposal has-been made, it should be authorized by this session, so that it may be conducted before Congress assem bles next December.

A MODEL TRAFFIC CODE.

The nation-wide movement to establish a model uniform code for the operation of motor vehicles was given official indorsement yesterday by Secretary of Commerce Hoover. Addressing the national conference on street and highway safety, Secretary Hoover said: "The need for uniformity of laws as between States and uniformity of traffic ordinances as be tween cities of the same State is to me so obvious as to hardly need any elaborate dis vehicle operators' and chauffeurs' license act: and third, a uniform act regulating the operation of vehicles on highways.

Secretary Hoover pointed out that while the total number of fatalities and serious accidents caused by motor vehicles is increasing, the rate of increase has been dropping for the lat two years, due, he believed, to the work of the many bodies represented by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety. Ap proximately 6,000 persons are living today who would have lost their lives through traffic accidents in 1924 and 1925 had it not been for the measures taken by such bodies, it was stated. When it is considered that last year 23,900 persons were killed and more than 600,000 injured in motor vehicle accidents, the importance of the work of the conference can not be overestimated. The adoption of a uniform code of motor car operation undoubtedly would greatly decrease the number of accidents. It is highly gratifying, therefore, that the government has given the stamp of approval to the movement that has been inaugurated.

REVISED ESTIMATES.

The actuary of the Treasury Department has furnished revised figures as to the probable receipts and expenditures of the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927. They Receipts, according to the budget estimate, $3.824,530,203; reductions by reason of much right as any other nation to ask for a the new tax law. $319,000,000; corrected estimate, $3,505,530,203.

Estimated withdrawals from the Treasury in 1927 will be $3,494,222,308; leaving an estimated balance of $11,307,894. From this it is feared that there may be a deficit at the end of 1927.

It is pointed out that already the House has drawn on the Treasury, for 1927, $25,000,000 in the public buildings bill. Majority Leader

Any material increase in expenditure, or authorization, even for the most meritorious purposes, can not be justified unless we are willing to go back and undo what we have already done in the tax law.

It would be unfortunate for the Treasury to face a deficit at the end of the fiscal year June 30, 1927. However, there is a comforting thought that internal revenue receipts so far are ahead of last year; and will probably exceed last year's receipts by $30,000,000. This trend of tax receipts proves the truth of the claim that when taxes are excessive revenue may decrease, and when taxes are made moderate revenue tends to increase.

TESTING THE FLEXIBLE TARIFF.

In view of the recent discussion of the activities of the tariff commission and the subsequent selection of a committee of senators to investigate the administration of the so-called flexible tariff, it is interesting to know that this portion of the tariff act of 1922 is before the courts to determine its constitutionality. The test cases have arisen over five commoditiessodium nitrite, wheat, wheat flour, barium dioxide and oxalic acid.

The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia upheld the commission in denying private information as to production costs. The case has been taken to the United States Supreme Court on a writ of error. Protests against the increased rate imposed by the President under the flexible tariff on sodium nitrite are still pending before the board of general appraisers. It is alleged that section 315 (the flexible section) in the tariff act is unconstitutional and void because Congress can not delegate its constitutional power to another branch of the government.

Protests have been filed against the President's increase of duty on wheat as unconstitutional and void for similar reasons; that legislative powers can not be delegated to any other department of the government. Protests have been filed against the President's increase n the duty on wheat flour because it is not provided for in the tariff act of 1922.

A protest is filed against the President's proclamation in regard to barium dioxide as unconstitutional, in that it is an attempted delegation to the executive of the power to legislate. In the protest against the proclams tion of the President in regard to exalic acid. it is claimed that it was "the taking of private property of the citizen without due process of law, in that it constitutes an unlawful delega tion of the taxing power."

These several protests and cases will finally test the validity of the so-called flexible sections of the tariff act of 1922. The main points raised are (1) that it is an illegal and unconstitutional delegation of legislative power: (2) that the cost of production is a matter of opinion, not fact, and not a definite basis upon which to change import rates; (3) and that to impose such duties regardless of revenue is beyond the power of Congress or of the executive.

These various cases and the decisions there under are of vital importance, touching the validity of the activities of the tariff commission and the President in the matter of tariff rates. They may automatically end the functions of the commission in this regard and restore it to its original character as a fact-finding body.

CHAPTER XXII (Continued). DATRICIA never knew quite how long the silence lasted.

But at last, after what seemed interminable length of time, y weighted down with pain, Marchdale turned to her 'There was no other way," he said heavily. "Kerry had to go."

"What did he—of what was he accused?" she asked.

He pointed to a chair.
"Sit down," he said briefly.
"You've proved your right to know the truth. Afterwards-after I've told you why Kerry had to go away—we will never speak of this

She seated herself mechanically, While Marchdale leaned his arm on the chimney-piece, shading his face with his hand. Presently he bagan to speak, in a hard, difficult voice, as though forcing himself to the performance of a duty from which his very soul recoiled. As Patricia listened, it seemed to her as though she could visualize all those scenes of the past through which he took her. She could see Kerry, gay and reckless, loving cards and racing and amusement, letting money slip through his fin-gers with the heedlessness of youth—Kerry, idolized, spoilt by pretty women, generous and extravagant to the last degree. Then the beginning of trouble betwlxt him and his uncle. Debts, which the earl paid time after time. Then further debts, followed by reprinted and proprints. mands and warnings. Later, Lord Marchdale's edict that he would pay no more—that Kerry must keep within his allowance. Last of all, a demand which could not be ignored for the immediate repayment of a loan, followed by an appeal for Marchdale and the state of the immediate repayment of a loan, followed by an appeal for the immediate repayment of a loan, followed by an appeal of the state of t refusal from the old man in return Then, within a few days, Kerry's exigent creditor suddenly and mysteriously paid—and, at the same time, fifty pounds stolen from the drawer where a certain amount of for the purpose of cash payments, bornly silent, until at last, forced by the remorseless logic of facts, the earl had point-blank accused him of the theft.

The control Patricia had been exercising throughout her godfather's brief narrative snapped suddenly. She sprang to her feet with a cry.

"Do you mean to say you believed Kerry guilty of theft?" she exclaimed. "Of theft! I never heard of anything so ridiculous! So—so funny!" She broke off on a sobbing breath half-way between a sobbing breath half-way between tears and wild laughter.

"There was no alternative but to believe it," replied Marchdale harshly. "The money—200 pounds in gold—was brought from the bank by Mathers during the morning and placed in the drawer where 55 Scho

there, with the drawer unlocked. Afterwards Mathers came back and locked it as usual. I used to carry a second key to the drawer, and having need of some cash on the following day, I was the person who discovered the theft."

"But because you discovered the loss, it doesn't prove that Kerry took the money," protested Patricia.

"No one else had had the opportunity," he returned, remorselessly. "He had. And how else, within twenty-four hours, could he have found the money to pay his debts?"

"How did you know that he had paid the money he owed?" she asked swiftly.

"I took steps to find out. Inquiry proved that Kerry had paid £50—in gold—into the bank on the very day Mathers had put the 200 into the drawer. He had paid it in just before the bank's closing hour, and had then drawn a check for that and had then drawn a cheek for that amount to the man in whose debt he stood. And he was unable to ac-count for his possession of such a sum of money."

Patricia stood clenching and un-young breast heaved tumultously.

"I don't believe it!" she said at last, in low, passionate tones, just as she had once said to Lady Mary. "Nothing will ever make me believe that Kerry—stole! Why—why"— laughing a little hysterically—it's

In her own trouble and dismay Patricia had hardly realized what that cia had hardly realized what that cia had hardly realized which the same and the mere thought of the insult done to him. It was inconceivable to her that the Earl and Lady Mary festered continually at the root of the Wynsborough pride had cost him. Yet it had been typical of his stern sense of duty that, having circumstantial evidence had been stern sense of duty that, having once recognized her peculiar right to know the truth, he had forced he had not been able to bring—or,

his haggard face.
"I'm sorry too," she said simply.
"But not like you are, godfather.
You see, I don't believe it. I can't." Her eyes shone like stars. "Nothing will shake my belief in Kerry, I trust him—absolutely!"

> CHAPTER XXIII. Several Points of View.

When Patricia left her godfather, she went straight upstairs and shut herself up in her own sitting room. She must be alone to think. Drawing a chair to the fire, she surren crous for a moment's credence. Now that she knew the kind of accusa-"He did deny it—to me."

"To you, very likely. In the circumstances, a mere denial—without proof—is hardly convincing." He spoke with bitter contempt.
"But—"" from him to convince her that he was innocent of such a charge.

A tempest of loyal anger and re-could have so easily believed him himself through the torment of telling her.

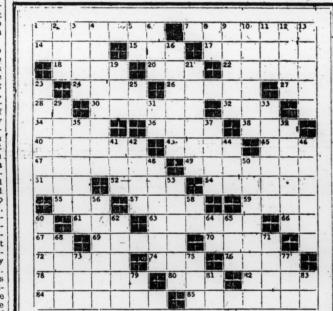

"Say no more. You know now why Kerry is not for you—nor any woman. Least of all for you—Barbara's child. My dear," he added with a sudden flash of unwonted tenderness, "I'm sorry—"

She caught his hand. It felt chill beneath her warm young fingers, and her heart gave a great leap of pity as she looked up into leap of pity as she looked up into by years of loneliness and self-re pression, hard and embittered, it might be, but yet wholly to be trusted, and one who carried his life lightly enough in his hand if that life could serve either friend or motherland.

If only Marchdale could have known the Kerry she had known! Gradually, softening her resent-ment as she pondered on the matter, came a deep compassion for the proud old man. She began to real-lize a little of what it must have been guilty of the common, sordid dered herself to the thoughts that act of theft. It must have dealt him crowded in upon her.

Kerry a thief! She dismissed the idea as utterly absurd. For her, with her knowledge of the GOLF.

Golf is a curious game, as all have found
Who've ever ventured out to play a round,
One day the ball will hold the line for you,
The next it won't in spite of all you will drop
The next they falter, reach the lip and stop.
Study and practice, struggle as you may
To every golfer comes his dreary day.
This thing called skill is subtle at the best,
If every golfer honestly confessed
He'd tell you that he'd never understood
Just why the other day he was so good:
There's much about the game he can't explain,

CHRISTIAN missionaries have been at work upon the Chinese for hundreds of years, but they have changed the ideas of only a very small part of the people. There are more followers of Mo-hammed in China than there are

The other native religious leader was named Laotze. He taught people to be pure and humble. He said that they should forgive the wrongs which others might do them. The which others might do them. The followers of Laotze have thousands of temples and spend much time in prayer. Their temples are commonly "pagodas," and are of the same type as temples in India. and then, this way

M ODERN beauty culture starts now at the wash basin. Leading skin specialists urge the use of a certain type of soap to cleanse the pores and free the skin of blemishinviting matter. Youth is thus preserved, the skin texture kept soft, supple and naturally lovely.

But note particularly: By a "certain type of soap," a true complexion soap now is meant. Some soaps are excellent for one purpose or another, yet perilous to the skin.

For that reason, Palmolive is so widely urged. It is a unique soap, made by experts in beauty solely for one purpose; to protect the complexion. A soap made to be used freely and lavishly on the skin. 60 years of soap study stand behind it. Before Palmolive came, women were told, "use no soap on your faces."

Soaps then were judged too harsh. Remember that point when tempted to "try" an ordinary soap, A good complexion is too priceless for experiment. Launder, cleanse with any soap you wish. But when beauty is at stake, take care. Use Palmolive according to the following rule—Nature's formula to "Keep That Schoolgirl Complexion."

next fight? I am 135 pounds at present (stripped), 5 feet 10 inches tall and well built. I have to scale 123 pounds in one month. How can I reduce quickly? I am a clerk in an office and can not afford to pay for gymnasium

REPLY.

I am afraid you are trying to fight at too light a weight for your height. You could lose 12 pounds in one month easily, but you will lose your strength if you do.

If you want to do it anyway

If you want to do it anyway—leave off the oatmeal, sugar and some of the bread. Eat meat and eggs instead. Reduce the amount of fluids you drink. Cut your evening meal in half or somewhere near that.

After supper, wrestle and box. Wear a heavy sweater when you run and some of the time when you are boxing.

Lose all of the 12 pounds in two weeks. Then eat more, hold your weight and try to regain your strength during that last two weeks.

"Oh, and do be a darling, won't you? Aunt Sophia told me to go to the caterer's about her dinner next Monday. Will you see him for me? And get my watch from the jeweler's as you go by? L. Fator and Kummer Have Requests for License Tabled.

Metropolitan Rulers Also Discipline Four Trainers.

EW YORK, March 23 (By A. P.). — Applications for licenses of Jockeys L. M. Fafor and Clarence Kummer were laid on the table today by the stew-ards of the Jockey club. This ac-tion will bar them from the New York State tracks unless favorable action is taken at a meeting just before the season starts. Although no official statement as to the cases of Fator and Kummer was issued by the stewards, it was indicated that unsatisfactory riding in races last season was behind the action. Fator was suspended by the Empire City association in Yonkers late last summer for an unsatisfactory showing.

A PPLICATIONS of John G. Dorsey and James Howan for trainers' licenses were denied, while those of G. C. Winfrey and Samuel Greenfield were laid on the table. B. A. Chilem, ruled off the tracks several years ago for using "ringers," failed in his plea for reinstatement to privileges.

No formal action was taken in the matter of the four jockeys and three owners barred for life by the Kentucky racing authorities last Saturday, but officials said that the ruling would be recognized and supported by governing turn bodies hroughout the country. Kummer and Fator are two of the best known jockeys on Northern tracks. The former is under contract to J. F. and E. M. Byers, while Fator rode last year under the colors of the Rancocas stable.

D IVISION of opinion as to the merits of the change made in the forward pass rule has brought out some contrasting viewpoints. There are those who think that the step is a backward one, others who can find no objection to the new ruling and still others who think that the rules com mittee erred on the side of timidity

The leader of the third class is W. O. McGeehan, of the New York Herald - Tribune. New York Herald - Tribune. According to McGeehan, the forward pass has been a play without a penalty; a sure thing gamble with which a team had everything to gain and nothing to lose, a situation which he compares to poker rules that provided no punishment for an unsuccessful bluff.

Had the gridiron rule makers been less timid. McGeehan ers been less timid, McGeehan thinks, they should have amended the rules so as to make an incompleted pass a free ball. In essence this would be grafting basketball on the parent stem of football, and it is to be doubted whether anybody wants to bring any such thing to pass.

Why was the forward pass, as it existed, a play without a penalty? Was there no danger of interception? And what greater penalty than that could the opponents of the pass, as it was, ask for? A forward pass was in every sense a free ball until it hit the ground. There is no way of proving or ball until it hit the ground. There is no way of proving or gainsaying the assertion, but this column believes that more touchdowns have been made on intercepted passes than were ever gained through the employment of a strictly aerial attack.

F McGEEHAN and the proponents of his theory can picture a team deep in the enemy's territory, where orthodox forward passing usually prevails, which suddenly loses the ball and finds itself with its back to the ball, or the sit-ation of the moment before exactly reversed, would they call that a sure thing play?

The blow, and such it is to football, is not going to be felt by the larger institutions, with a plethora of material and dozens of specialists on the coaching staff to train men to become expert in some one small feature of the game. men representing such colleges, incidentally, predominate on the rules committee. The teams that will suffer will be the smaller ones, who found in daring development of the forward pass a weapon that equalized the bulk and number of their larger opponents.

Golf Yielded Big Return In Florida

Grange and Tunney Were Only "Flops," Says Pegler.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER. NEW YORK, March 23.—The Florida sport season is now in the last half of the ninth, with no prospect of going into extra innings, and it is about time to add the score and ascertain what it was

Some of the Florida real estate men and press agents promise to in-vest in the athletic ballyhoo in a still more extravagant way next year, believing that no other line of activity will yield as many date-lines and ribbon-strip heads in the newspapers everywhere as sport events will.

Others suspect that the athletic curriculum will be curtailed next year in proportion to the diminution of the real estate business.

This will not be a treatise on the state of the real estate market in Florida, however, but a piece about the athletic events, including some emphatic financial flops, that made up the greatest winter program of warm weather sports ever run off in this country and the part that the press agents, most of them alumni of metropolitan newspaper offices, performed in keeping the swimmers, the golfers, the tennis players and the horseshoe pitchers on the hustle in a gay parade across the sport

LeT it be understood that in most, if not all cases, the athletes were taken to Florida for mercenary reasons by chambers of commerce or hotel companies or individual land boosters.

There will be a one-minute pause at this point for reproaches if any one thinks it necessary to reproach the chambers of commerce, the ho-tel companies or individual land boosters for using the fame of the athletes to advertise their munici-palities, their boarding houses or their acreage, as the case happened

Such reproaches will be superfluous in some cases, because there were some enterprises that failed to prosper very lavishly, even after their promoters had gone to the expense of producing amateur or propense of producing amateur or prothe rules committee. The teams that will suffer will be the smaller ones, who found in daring development of the forward pass a weapon that equalized the bulk and number of their larger opponents.

With perhaps a few exceptions, these 75 golf courses had one or more professionals apiece, at wages ranging from the modest couple of thousand dollars drawn by the un-known assistant pro from some club up North to the $30,000 salary that Walter Hagen is said to receive as president of the Pasadena territory.

This was only one of three $5,000 tournaments, the same amount being pooled for the shows at Sanford and Miami. Lakeland offered a $3,500 pool and Sebring matched it. There was a $3,000 tournament at Miami, and the same money was divided at St. Augustine and St. Petersburg, which complete summary of the St. Augustine and St. Petersburg, which complete summary of the prizes makes a total of $31,000 in tournament prize money, entirely apart from the salaries and exhibitions are resident to the professionals.

month, no interpreter is needed to month, no interpreter is needed to read the handwriting on the wall, which says very plainly "Harry Kelley, Willard Morrell, and Clar-ence Thomas."

Larry Schacht and Arthur Humphreys left camp this morning.

Hal Smith has been ordered to New Haven, and it would not be at all surpising if the other two did not move on shortly. The player limit of 25 need not be reached until June 15 and it is just possible that most of those left—the three first named and Jim Lyle and Irying Hadley—will be carried along to be used in batting practice. Lyle was in the fight for quite a spell and many of the wise guessers thought he was due to stick, but since Morrell's sore wing has got in shape, Jim's stock appears to have taken quite a slump. The latter boasts of an exceptionally fast ball and is all arms and legs when working, which means that where the ball is coming from. He lacks a good curve and this is likely to cost him a 1926 big league

Time was when a good fast baller or a good curver could get by, but, as the famous Mr. Goldberg says.
"Them days is gone forever."
Now a pitcher must have everything and plenty of it or he is a flat tire. Not only has Morrell shown that he has speed and curves, but, added to a tricky delivery, he brings to the Nats considerable experience, having played nearly two seasons in the bushes as well as four years in college ranks.

It appeared from scorers' row that the Wonders played into the hands of Aloysius. Instead of using their short-passing, whirling offense, which had kept their slate clean to date, the high school stars abandoned that style soon after the contest got under way, and thereafter had to wrestle with their heavier opponents.

The usual argument preceded the action. This time Manager Jack Harrington, of Aloysius, who is getting to be considerable of a diplomat in these parts, had Julius Radice, also an Eagle, barred from the Wonder line-up.
